Distinguished Speaker Series

Gandhi and a Culture of Peace

Joseph Prabhu, Professor of Philosophy California State University, Los Angeles
A model of what academicians aspire to be, Joseph Prabhu is noted as "an excellent teacher who makes a lasting impression on students; an intellectual and widely recognized scholar; and a colleague who is a solid citizen of the world."
Dr. Prabhu was educated first in economics at Delhi University. Then in Europe he studied philosophy and religion, spending time at Universities in Germany and Cambridge University in England, where he received his M.A. in philosophy. It was at Boston University that he secured his Ph.D. with a thesis on "Hegel's Philosophy of Religion." Dr. Prabhu has taught at CSULA since 1978, but has also been visiting professor at UC Berkeley, Harvard University and the University of Chicago. His teaching interests are in metaphysics, ethics, philosophy of religion, social and political philosophy, and comparative religion. In addition, he has presented more than 100 guest lectures at universities in Germany, Spain, Turkey, Japan, Australia and India.
The National Endowment for the Humanities has granted Dr. Prabhu nine fellowships and he has also garnered fellowships at the Center for the Study of World Religions at Harvard University.
Dr. Prabhu is working on three books, in various stages of completion: "Liberating Gandhi: Community, Empire and a Culture of Peace", "Human Rights in Cross-Cultural Perspective" and "Hegel, India and the Dark Face of Modernity." He is the current President of the Society of Asian and Comparative Philosophy.
